Dear Miss Abdelnour:

Please pardon the delay in writing to you about the cylinder and the coin concerning which you ask me. Substantiating what I told you about the coin, the fact that it is pierced deprives it of the premium it might have numismatically if it were in perfect condition. It is probably a ten ducat piece but having been pierced is worth very little more than its gold content.

Mr. Newell tells me that the cylinder, the cast from which I am returning to you under separate cover, would be worth in the neighborhood of twenty dollars, if the description I gave him of it could be depended upon. This will confirm your decision not to part with these pieces, I feel sure.

Sincerely yours,

Secretary.
